Chickahominy TRIAD
New Kent and Charles City Counties

Dear Members of the Chickahominy TRIAD,

Today marks more than the re-chartering of a TRIAD—it marks the reaffirmation of a promise. A promise that in our Commonwealth, we look out for one another, and that no senior in Virginia should ever have to face the world alone or unprotected.

The Chickahominy TRIAD has lived that promise every day. Under the leadership of President Danny Green, you have built something extraordinary—an alliance of compassion and courage. You've helped seniors stay connected, protected, and empowered. You've secured tools to fight back against scammers, provided medical equipment for those in need, and organized fairs that inform and inspire. In every act of service, you've reminded us what community truly means.

Last year, your work earned statewide recognition when you received the Outstanding Service Through TRIAD Award. But your greatest award is found in the lives you've touched and the peace of mind you've restored to so many.

As Attorney General, I am deeply grateful for your partnership and proud of all you have accomplished. You represent the very best of Virginia—the belief that strong communities aren't built by government alone, but by neighbors who care enough to serve, to lead, and to stand watch for those who once stood watch for us.

Though I cannot be with you in person, please know you have my full admiration and heartfelt congratulations. Your continued service is a beacon of hope, and our Commonwealth shines brighter because of you.

With gratitude and respect,
